Sponsoring Organization's Agreement:

In addition to the academic conditions for admission to the Northern Illinois University MBA program, the applicant must be sponsored by a governmental unit, community organization, or private business. Under most circumstances, the sponsoring organization is expected to be the applicant's employer. Self-employed individuals, such as attorneys, accountants, consultants, etc., also qualify if they can verify they are organized as a private business as defined by the Internal Revenue Service.

Employer support is an important component to a participant's successful completion of the Northern Illinois University's MBA Program. This support includes the recognition of the level of commitment and dedication required for the participant to be successful in the program, as well as the granting of the necessary time away from work to attend class. Sponsorship may also include full or partial financial support.
